Multiholk Plus

-A favourite with small birds

The popular Multiholk from Wildlife Garden has been given a makeover, making it more functional at a more advantageous price. The new version, Multiholk Plus, which functions as a nesting box in the summer and a feeder in the winter, can now be mounted on a post or a wall, and can easily be moved between the two. The feeding holes have also been improved, providing the food with better protection from rain, wind and snow. Small birds will appreciate not being disturbed by larger birds, which are not able to use the Multiholk.

The smart feeding holes on the side of the house offer excellent protection from rain, wind and snow. There is a lower risk of damp and mould, as the feed is held lower down giving better protection. The construction means that food is kept clear of droppings, which would otherwise lead to risk of infection.

Whether or not the perches are placed by the feeder holes, determines which guests your feeder will attract. The perches attract sparrows and tits, but make it impossible for larger birds to feed. By removing the perches completely your feeder will mostly attract tits. On www.wildlifegarden.co.uk you can read more about which birds your Multiholk will attract.
